ANN ARBOR, MI – January 20, 2010 – In 2006, Ann Arbor Mayor John Hieftje announced his vision for making Ann Arbor a model for mobility in the 21st Century. He outlined key elements of his transportation vision that included and supported alternative forms of transportation such as walking and bicycling, but also expanded on the City's bus, rail and train system to support a more regional mode of mobility.

Today, the City of Ann Arbor has the opportunity to move toward this vision. In September 2009, community members were invited to attend the first of several public meetings about this project. A second public meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, February 10, at 7 p.m. in Council Chambers at City Hall.
