The City's election inspectors received over 1800 hours of training and instruction in 2018.

the months of July to December to include two full-time temporary office staff and four part-time temporary field staff, in addition to overtime and assistance from other City departments. During the two elections, a combined 86,799 ballots were cast, including 21,074 absent voter ballots. To process these ballots, the City Clerk's Office hired community members to serve as election inspectors to staff the City's 53 neighborhood precincts and Absent Voter Counting Boards in August and November 2018. Election inspectors received a total of 1861.75 hours of training and worked 9,935 hours on Election Days. Training included specialized chairperson sessions, new inspector training, hands-on electronic poll book certification and Election Day refresher courses.

Recruitment efforts for new election inspectors included the City’s ongoing AAPS student inspector program and the University of Michigan Law School. 65 high school students were trained and worked the November 2018 election. New outreach efforts focused on the University’s undergraduate students, with assistance from the UM Turn Up Turnout effort, which resulted in a successful program that allowed 41 undergraduate students to work near their classes and coordinate breaks to both attend school and participate at the polls. Deputy Clerk Steve Gerhart also worked with the Ann Arbor Housing Commission on a first-time recruitment effort with residents of public housing.

Elections and Technology

To deliver exceptional customer service for voters, the Clerk's Office has embraced technology. Ann Arbor voters rely on the Clerk’s Office webpage for election information. Due to the gubernatorial election in FY19, the City Clerk’s webpage received 100,337 unique page views, with 62,857 of those views attributed to the elections page. Interestingly, these numbers surpass the unique page views recorded in the year of the last presidential election by 17.1% overall and 17.39% specifically on the elections page. Embracing the community’s technological inclination, the Clerk’s Office collaborated with students from the University of Michigan’s School of Information to launch a reporting tool to provide real-time reports of lines at polling locations throughout the city.

UM Fellows, Ethan Greer and Shaelyn Albrecht, present their final project regarding polling place lines at the School of Information symposium.

In November 2018, Michigan voters approved a constitutional amendment removing some of the restrictions that previously surrounded absentee voting. "Promote the Vote" or Proposal 3 also greatly expanded voting rights in Michigan, including a new 15-day mail-in voter registration deadline and same-day registration for in-person voters on Election Day. In response to this amendment, the Clerk's Office once again sought out a better way to connect residents and deliver services, partnering with the City's Information Technology Service Unit to create a web-based form for Ann Arbor residents to sign up for the permanent absent voter application list; voters on this list automatically receive absentee ballot applications every election. The new online sign-up increased the permanent absent voter application list by 23%, adding 926 voters in FY2019.

The new technology automated the draft responses for the 645 FOIA requests received in FY19.
