

Meet The Goats!

Bling

This flashy girl is a 2-year-old Boer mix. She is very friendly and likes attention. Her mother's name is Diamond and she has a little sister waiting at home named Jewel who will be ready to join the family business next year.

Freckle

Freckle is a 4-year-old Boer goat mix who is the oldest goat on the islands. This veteran brush clearer got her name from a little white spot, or freckle, on the bottom of her chin.

Little Red

3-year-old Little Red is a full-blooded Boer goat. She got her name because she was born mid-January. Being winter in Michigan, it was cold outside, so she wore a little red coat all winter.

Mae

Mae is a 2-year old Boer goat mix. This shy doe does not like her picture taken. She is more concerned with getting her work done than socializing with people.

Olive

This strong willed Boer goat mix is probably the most stand-offish goat on the island. Her mothers name is Sweet Pea. They both like hamburgers...but only the buns!

Rosie

Sweet little boer mixed goat. This 2 year old is like any toddler and likes to jump on you. Her older sister Salt is on the island with her.

Salt

This 3-year-old Boer mix is the quiet one of the sisters (her sister Rosie is on the island also). Her ears are short because they got frostbit one winter from dipping in water. Being different is good.

Sandalwood

This Boer goat mix is a legacy at Twin Willow Ranch. She is the great-great-granddaughter of Split Ear who was one of the original Boer goats that started our herd.

Thimble

This young 4-year-old Boer goat mix was born premature. She hardly had any fur on her ears or body. She was very tiny and delicate but strong. She was successfully raised by her mother Lacy.

Windy

This Boer goat mix had gastrointestinal issues as a doeling (hence the descriptive name). She was a bottle-fed baby with an attitude. Her orneriness continues, as she likes to push the other girls around, but she can be very friendly when she wants to be.
